DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by US 6,465,742 (hereafter Hiraoka).

Examiner notes the limitation that the conductive sections be “regulated by abraiding” is a process limitation in a device claim and is thus only considered to the extent that said process impacts the structure. Moreover, it is well settled that the presence of process limitations in product claims, which product does not otherwise distinguish over the prior art, cannot impart patentability to that product. (In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964, 966 (Fed. Cir. 1985))

Hiraoka discloses, referring to figure 4A, a multilayer circuit board comprising: a plurality of cable layers (6a,b) each of which includes electric conductive sections (7); a plurality of first insulating layers (8), each of which encloses said electric conductive sections in each cable layer and fills spaces between said electric conductive section sections and post vias (10) electrically connecting said electric conductive sections in one cable layer to those in another cable layer, wherein height of said electric conductive sections in each cable layer are regulated to be equal to that of said first insulating layer enclosing those electric conductive sections (see col. 21, lines 50-68)[claim 1], further comprising a second insulating layer (8) which is formed to enclose said post vias, wherein height of said post vias are regulated to be equal to that of said second insulating layer (see col. 21, lines 50-68) [claim 2].

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8 March 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant asserts that the claimed invention distinguishes over the prior art of record because Hiraoka does not disclose the height of the electric conductive sections in each cable layer being regulated by abraiding. However, as stated above, this limitation is a process limitation in a device claim and is thus only considered to the extent that said process impacts the structure. Moreover, it is well settled that the presence of process limitations in product claims, which product does not otherwise distinguish over the prior art, cannot impart patentability to that product. (In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964, 966 (Fed. Cir. 1985)). Thus Applicant's traversal of the instant rejection on this ground is deemed unsuccessful.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
